

Washington, D.C. – “Governor Bill Richardson is one of America’s most credentialed and productive public officials and I offer my congratulations to him and his family on his prestigious nomination to become our nation’s next Commerce Secretary. President-elect Obama’s selection of Governor Richardson to serve in this important post indicates that the Obama-Biden Administration will make the resurgence of our nation’s sagging economy one of their top priorities.

“I would once again like to salute Governor Richardson for all of his service on behalf of our wonderful nation and I look forward to working closely with him on initiatives that will spur job growth and increase efficiency in our nation’s economic output.”
